A SUSPECTED gun-conversion factory has been uncovered in Haringey as part of an 18-month sting to tackle serious and organised crime in Haringey and Enfield.

A total of 16 firearms have been recovered and 16 people charged following Operation Peyzac, an intelligence-led attempt to snare violent, gun-toting gangsters in north east London.

The operation saw Enfield Council lease business premises in Fore Street, Angel Edmonton, to the police. The shop was staffed with undercover police officers and traded for almost a year. A police spokesman said it opened in an area "where intelligence indicated gang activity and associated criminality".

A number of gun parts and ammunition were found at the suspected factory in Haringey although officers have refused to be drawn on any more details and say searches are ongoing.

Knives, swords, air rifles and a samurai sword, as well as more than a kilo of Class A drugs and bundles of cash, were also discovered during dawn raids last week, carried out by Haringey and Enfield officers as well as specialists from the Territorial Support Group and Specialist Crime Directorate. Another warrant was carried out at a house in Leeds.

North London Link Commander Simon Pountain said: "I'm extremely pleased with the results which are the culmination of a long-term operation and highlight our commitment to tackling serious and organised crime in our communities. We will continue to disrupt and arrest those involved in this type of criminality."

David Tucker, Enfield's Chief Superintendent, who headed up the operation, added: "Significant resources have been devoted to Operation Peyzac over many months. We won't tolerate violence and associated gang activity and always ensure we use a variety of tactics to track down criminals and bring them to justice. We know we have the support of the wider community to combat violence." □ Damien McGowan, 30, of Collingwood Road, Tottenham, has been charged with supplying firearms and manufacturing prohibited weapons.

A "MASSIVE and colourful" day of campaigning will take place tomorrow in protest at cuts threatening to devastate The Whittington Hospital.

The day of action has been planned to keep up pressure on the NHS executives behind a planned cost-cutting review of health services in north London, as well as politicians eager to snare votes in the run-up to the general election.

The Whittington's A&E department is earmarked to be either closed or scaled back to a 16-hour service under four of seven options drafted by executives at NHS London. But NHS London says the process is still at an early stage and has promised full consultation with residents.

There will be several demonstrations outside surgeries and churches in the Archway area, with many planning to wear symbolic bandages or dress up as cats in homage to The Whittington's black cat logo. A rally at noon will include the launch of 200 balloons.

Shirley Franklin, joint chairwoman of the Defend The Whittington Hospital Coalition, told the Advertiser she wanted to "up the ante".

She said: "This is to keep up the pressure and make sure people know we do not want our hospital reduced to nothing. We want to tell the NHS executives that we will not go away and also want to force politicians into guarantees on The Whittington's future."

The coalition masterminded a hugely successful demonstration on February 27 where about 5,000 concerned residents, from parents with pushchairs to centenarians with walking sticks, marched along Holloway Road in protest at the proposed cuts.

Whittington rally to keep up pressure

Shadow health secretary Andrew Lansley, who has pledged to stop the review if the Conservatives are elected, is among the speakers on the day.

Ms Franklin urged anyone free tomorrow to support them. "This is an opportunity to remind North Central London NHS that this is our hospital, not theirs, and to show our support for the workers and patients of The Whittington," she said. "Please come along if you can."

Stepfather of Baby P denied rape appeal

ONE of the evil trio responsible for the death of Baby Peter in Tottenham has been denied the chance to appeal against a rape conviction at the Supreme Court.

Steven Barker was jailed for life and ordered to spend at least ten years behind bars for raping a two-year-old girl. The 33-year-old had his challenge against the conviction rejected by the Court of Appeal in January and last Tuesday also lost a bid to take it to the Supreme Court.

Lord Chief Justice Lord Judge said the case did not raise any "point of law of general public importance". He added: "That, therefore, is the end of the matter," according to the BBC.

Barker had claimed he did not receive a fair trial and claimed his rape conviction was unsound.

He had been jailed for 12 years for causing or allowing the death of 17-month-old Peter Connelly in 2007. The toddler died at the hands of his mother Tracey Connelly, Barker and their lodger Jason Owen, from Bromley.

Sharon Shoemsmith, the former head of children's services at Haringey Council, last Friday lost her High Court claim that she was unfairly sacked from her £133,000-a-year post in the wake of the Baby Peter scandal. However, she may still pursue an unfair dismissal claim against Haringey Council.

‘I thought at first it was all a joke. But it was terrible. One of my fingers was hanging off’

Car salesman describes facing up to masked gunmen

By Lucy Purdy

A CAR salesman who faced two masked thugs who stormed his business in Seven Sisters brandishing guns and demanding money has described his ordeal.

Turgut Husseyin, who runs SS Cars in Stamford Road, was threatened by two men who approached his used-car sales lot at about 4.30pm last Wednesday and ordered him to hand over his takings.

The terrified 48-year-old, who lives in Edmonton and has three grown-up children, saw the men wearing balaclavas approach and initially thought it was “some kind of joke”. But in the scuffle that followed, Mr Husseyin’s hand was so badly cut that he had to undergo emergency surgery at the Royal Free Hospital this week to repair damage to the nerves on one of his fingers.

He told the Advertiser: “They came up as I was serving someone and demanded money, to which I replied that I didn’t have any.

“Both of them had a greyish gun and one pointed it at my belly. As I was holding the gun back I cut my hand on something, I’m not sure if it was a knife, and when I pulled it back, I realised I had a cut. It was a nice sunny day and they just walked away down the main road, so I thought at first it was some kind of joke. But it was terrible.”

Mr Husseyin is now contemplating shutting up the business he has built up over seven years and said his family want him to close up shop, fearing for his safety.

He added: “I’m scared at work. I haven’t opened up for four days because I keep thinking they’re going to come back. My hand was cut all along three fingers and the middle one was hanging off. It is so painful.

“The doctors told me it could have been much worse – I’ve just got to wait for it to heal now which will take months.

“My family want me to give it up but, with family and bills to pay,

I don’t know if I can. I’m sitting in my office and I’m scared someone is going to walk through the door.”

Though the masked gunmen eventually fled empty-handed down Stamford Road, away from Broad Lane, police have appeared for anyone with information to come forward.

Anyone with information should call Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Performers given platform in busking

MUSICIANS from across Haringey filled London's most iconic Underground busking venues with sound this weekend as part of a contest to find the capital's most exciting young performer.

By Lucy Purdy

Several acts from the borough were selected to take part in the Rhythm Of London busking competition on Saturday, getting to entertain thousands of commuters and tourists at various Underground spots.

Prizes up for grabs include guitars, studio time, live gigs and a sought-after busking licence with Transport for London as well as hearing their sounds travel along the subterranean tunnels.

Will Rindle used the slot at Bank station and outside the O2 Arena to test-run tracks from his debut album, due out this summer.

Together with drummer Damon Wilson and keyboard player John Tilley, the 22-year-old is Will And The People which plays "rag-pop" to its growing fanbase. The band has already supported The Police, The Hoosiers,

The Script and Paulo Nuttini and hone their sound in a studio in Digby Crescent, Finsbury Park.

Their music is influenced by singer Will's love of bands such as Bob Marley and the Wailers, The Specials and Californian ska-punk band Sublime which he describes as his "favourite band ever".

He told the Advertiser the band had entered the competition, organised by London Mayor Boris Johnson, on a whim.

"Busking has been really cool because it's at the grassroots level every musician wants to be at," he explained.

"We were signed to RCA which fell through and I don't know if I actually want to get signed again.

I've now set up my own label called Baggy Trousers Music and we've just finished making our debut album The G a m e which is out in May.

"I call our sound rag-pop because I used to listen to loads of old ragtime music and we have lots of reggae influences too. The name Will And The People came about because I found it difficult to find steady musicians – I've been through about 30 members in four or five years!"

SOUL and folk-singer Janice Drummond, who performs under the name Madame Pepper, got the chance to strut her stuff at Waterloo Underground station.

Janice, who often performs alongside DJs and MCs as part of the Spreadluv Collective, plays guitar and sings. She describes her sound as "souly and alternative" and often uses a guitar fitted with a loop pedal, which adds layers of melody and texture to the music.

The 23-year-old, who lives near Bruce Grove station but was brought up in Kingsbury, said: "I entered the competition mostly for fun. I gig all around anyway so this was just for the enjoyment. I would love to win a licence to busk – that would be really fun. I've never done it before."

Janice describes Minnie Riperton as one of her musical heroes – the American singer and songwriter is best known for having a vocal range of more than five octaves. And she uses experiences in her life, such as relationships and unrequited loves, as material for her music.

Running for office as Tottenham MP – why each wants your vote

As the general election looms large, LUCY PURDY asks the hopefuls about their promises

Lib Dem:
David Schmitz

AFTER living in Tottenham for 20 years, Lib Dem David Schmitz hopes to be victorious in a "straight fight between us and Labour".

Mr Schmitz, 61, became involved in politics eight years ago when he found himself living next door to a crack den and frustrated at the council's failure to close it.

He has used his background as a barrister to help residents, representing the Chestnuts Community Centre for free and helping the Ward's Corner Community Coalition defend the Latin American market at Seven Sisters.

Mr Schmitz is also standing to be a Haringey councillor. He said: "David Lammy has taken the constituency and its people for granted."

"I'll open our office in the constituency. I'm categorically not interested in a ministerial career but in serving the people, not being a local sales representative for my party."

Tax reforms including "closing loopholes" for the very rich and the phased abolition of university tuition fees will also be high on his agenda if elected.

GREEN Party candidate Anne Gray hopes to win votes to further the cause of her party rather than for personal ambition.

The 65-year-old wants to keep the NHS public, see people who earn more than £100,000 a year heavily taxed, the state pension increased to £170 a week and the introduction of free school meals for all.

Ms Gray, who has lived in the West Green ward since the 1980s, said: "Climate change is a threat to humanity and we need to act on it fast. It is the most vulnerable people in the world whose homes are flooded by rising seas.

"People are fed up with Labour. They've privatised more, such as the NHS, the London Underground and council functions such as refuse collection, which is putting taxpayers' money into shareholders' pockets."

"We'd encourage more use of public transport and create 16m sustainable jobs. I'd like to restore Lee Valley manufacturing as in its 1950s heyday."

Green:
Anne Gray

EX-HARINGEY mayor Sheik Thompson is standing as an independent candidate in Tottenham, promising a "fairer and transparent" administration.

Mr Thompson, who resigned from the Labour Party this year after claiming colleagues "ignore residents' issues", has lived in Tottenham Hale for more than 20 years and campaigned on a number of issues. He represented local groups on subjects such as sheltered housing and opposed building on Down Lane Recreation Park. Mr Thompson is chairman of Chestnut Area Residents' Association and has helped support ethnic minority churches in the area.

He said: "Being an independent gives me the power to be a true voice for the underprivileged groups."

I've represented disadvantaged groups and will be a fair voice to represent the diverse people in Haringey. I don't just make promises, but get things done."

Conservative:
Sean Sullivan

TORY candidate Sean Sullivan promises to "stand up for the people of Tottenham" if he is elected.

The 29-year-old believes he is a better candidate than Labour's David Lammy and believes the economy and crime are at the crux of this year's election.

He said: "I think that David Lammy simply hasn't served the people of Tottenham – he has been more interested in his ministerial career. Tottenham really needs someone to stand up for it. We have to get rid of this economic deficit which is going to have a huge effect on Tottenham: more people out of work, small businesses going under and mortgage rates high."

"When I've been knocking on people's doors we always get the same stories – they don't feel safe on their doorsteps. They don't care what statistics politicians tell them. It also amazes me that after all of this time we have police officers making an arrest and having to do six hours of paperwork. We would put more officers on the streets of Tottenham."

DAVID Lammy has represented Tottenham in parliament since 2000 when he was elected following the death of Bernie Grant. He is also the minister for higher education.

He told the Advertiser he hopes residents will vote him back in not only for his record but also his vision for the future. Mr Lammy said: "I want to remind people of the improvements we've seen under Labour which happened due to decisions by the Labour government but also decisions I've been pushing hard for."

"Housing estates across the borough have benefited from £176million under the Decent Homes Standard and schools are seeing massive improvement: from 20 per cent of kids getting five A-C grades to 50 per cent because we have the right teachers. We have to support young adults to stand up to knife crime which I've been closely involved in.

"Tottenham needs someone strong who understands the area but who is also comfortable in the corridors of power."

"I believe I'm the best man for the job in what will be a very difficult next five years."

Labour:
David Lammy

YOUTH worker Winston McKenzie is standing as a candidate for the UK Independence Party, pledging to make Tottenham an "inspiration to the nation".

A former middleweight boxer, the 54-year-old father-of-five wants to see a "new breed" of politicians in parliament and believes he is the best person to serve Tottenham, with youth engagement and supporting local businesses at the top of his agenda.

UKIP: Winston McKenzie

Mr McKenzie, a former London mayoral candidate and older brother of boxer Duke McKenzie, said: "The incumbent MP and the government have allowed Tottenham to fall into a state of almost absolute extinction, particularly with regard to the future of the youth here. I have a track record working with the community and I can turn it around."

TRADE Unionist And Socialist Coalition representative Jenny Sutton felt compelled to stand after discovering there will be £2.5million of cuts at the College of Haringey, Enfield and North East London.

A mother-of-two and Tottenham resident, Ms Sutton has taught English to speakers of other languages at the college, in High Road, for 21 years and was shocked and dismayed to find out about the cuts back in February.

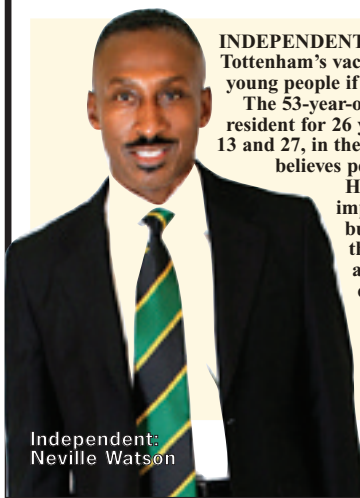

She said: "Tottenham has one of the highest unemployment rates in London and education is important to this community. David Lammy is the minister for higher education but he's not fighting for the college. His government is cutting our college and if our local MP can't stop cuts, who can? All three main parties plan massive cuts across all public services

Trade Unionist and Socialist Coalition:

because of the black hole caused by the government gambling away our money."

Ms Sutton is branch secretary of the University and College Union at the college.

Independent:
Neville Watson

INDEPENDENT candidate Neville Watson pledges to return Tottenham's vacant buildings to use and help motivate the area's young people if elected.

The 53-year-old lives in Roslyn Road and has been a Tottenham resident for 26 years, bringing up his three children, aged between 13 and 27, in the area. He is standing as an independent because he believes people should vote for an MP, "not an ideology".

He told the Advertiser: "Urban regeneration is very important to me. By bringing back to use disused buildings which are idle and vacant, we could use them as small units for creative young people. There are so many young people with lots to offer but they can't afford rents and start-up costs."

"I believe very much in a bottom-up philosophy – getting things right on a local level first."

Mr Watson previously worked as a manager at Haringey Borough Football Club and helped organise Peace Week for Haringey Peace Alliance.

Errol Carr, who is standing as an independent candidate, and Abimbola Kadara, who is standing as a candidate for The Christian Party, were both contacted by the Advertiser but failed to respond before the paper went to press.

Victorian morals in shake-up

By Camilla Goodman

A CONTROVERSIAL 800-page novel that caused a stir in Victorian society has been boiled down to a two-hour play.

George Eliot's last novel, Daniel Deronda, written in 1876, is described by playwright John Cooper as a "darker Pride And Prejudice", which shocked with a storyline representing Jewish culture in a positive light.

"This was written at a time when you couldn't vote if you were Jewish," explained John. "Eliot really was 100 years ahead of her time."

This issue is unlikely to get tongues wagging in today's society, so why has the decision been made to adapt it and how will an audience of today respond to it?

"I think the audience will relate to the character of Gwendolen because she has an emotional and moral development. She marries for money and when it all goes wrong she realises she has made a mistake and Deronda becomes her moral compass."

The adaptation is directed by Harry Meacher and has a cast of 17 people wearing period costumes and performing a few dance numbers.

"When I wrote the script I did it with Harry in mind," said John.

"I didn't include many stage directions because I knew he would use his instinct for what is dramatically effective."

George Eliot, a male pseudonym used by Mary Anne Evans in order to have her work taken more seriously, also wrote Middlemarch and The Mill On The Floss.

"She was one of the original feminists – but in a good way," said John. "She was concerned with the emotional development of characters rather than political issues."

● Daniel Deronda will be playing at Upstairs At The Gatehouse, in Highgate Village, from next Wednesday to May 29. There are performances at 8pm on Tuesdays to Saturdays, and 4pm on Sundays. For details and reservations call the box office on 020 8340 3488.

The Disappearance of Alice Creed (18)

Dir: J Blakeson

Starring: Eddie Marsan, Martin Compston, Gemma Arterton

THE stars shine brightly in the cinematic sky before a cloud of narrative trash makes it impossible for this film to fly.

For the first ten minutes there were five glorious stars. A tense, intriguing opening involves two men meticulously preparing a room and a white van for what will surely prove to be unsavoury purposes. Only one word is spoken until a young woman is bundled into the back of the van and taken to their fortified flat in the middle of God-knows-where.

In the next 20 minutes we lost one star but were still gripped as the woman is stripped, gagged and tied to the bed in brutally realistic fashion; her pictures taken and emailed to her father with demands for a £2million ransom. We learn little, only that this is Alice Creed, the older kidnapper is Vic and the younger one, Danny, and the duo met in prison where they hatched this desperate plan. There are hints Vic is more driven and more violent than Danny but little is given away. But then, 30 minutes in, a whopper of a plot twist is revealed that instantly snuffs out two more stars by being so unbelievable, ridiculous, and out of context with the taut opening that it crucially loses our trust for the remaining two thirds.

The writer/director – in his feature

The opening dazzles, but the film dims

Valiant: Gemma Arterton struggles convincingly but the script lets her down film debut – cannot sustain the initial promise, leading us down the well-trod path of conventional thrillers and more plot twists to turn the narrative into a stomach-churning helter skelter.

What's more original is the dynamic minimalism of just three characters for the entire film; enacting power struggles in one claustrophobic setting over a set period to suggest producing this as a play might have worked better – though we're still left with a sub-Pinteresque script in dire need of a surgeon.

Gemma Arterton gamely accepts a variety of humiliations and acts suitably distressed while the men offer intense performances to maintain those twin stars in the darkening sky.

Psycho (15)

Re-release of the third greatest ever Hitchcock film – just behind Vertigo and North By Northwest. Discuss. The shower scene is the obvious highlight but just love the ingenious way we're blithely led down one genre route – thriller – before a screeching U-turn into out-and-out horror heralded by the arrival of Mr Bates.

Date Night (15)

Finally a quality date film to see on a date that is not cloyingly sentimental or hysterically unfunny. Steve Carell and Tina Fey superb as a boring couple whose normal "date night" turns into an orgy of violence, misunderstanding and feverish hilarity.

Cemetery Junction (15)

Ricky Gervais' and Stephen Merchant's first film outing is a mixed bag of comedy and drama, nostalgia and grit, great scenes and lame ones. Set in the early '70s, three youths try to thrive in provincial surroundings.

Shelter (15)

Silly, supernatural thriller starring Julianne Moore as a psychiatrist. Cue lots of multiple personality disorders. Even weirder, we found ourselves gripped by the movie's unravelling, ridiculous mystery.

Area in Focus - 'The Haringay Ladder'

There is a sought after spot in Haringay called the 'Haringay Ladder' Steve Hatch from Castles Estate Agents has been valuing and selling properties on the 'Ladder' for the last 16 years, he explains; The 'Haringay Ladder' has long been a very popular and sought after part of Haringay... here are a few examples from a property valuers prospective:

Rich in Architecture... There are many beautiful Victorian houses and flats on the Haringay Ladder. The Salisbury public house is another architectural beauty, and worth a visit. It is the stunning building on the corner of Green Lanes and St Anns Road. Dave the manager is always welcoming and happy to discuss the history of the place too!

Spoilt for choice with transport... There are actually three mainline train stations along the Haringay Ladder. The Piccadilly Line runs beneath Green Lanes from Turnpike Lane (zone 3) and into Manor House (zone 2). Here is a little known Tube Fact... The stretch of Piccadilly Line between Turnpike Lane and Manor House is the longest stretch between stations on the entire London underground network!

Meet the neighbours... The local residents have their own award winning community website enabling local folk to share ideas, work together on local projects, and organise regular social gatherings, all of which make for a close and growing community. Collectively local residents are forming strong bonds and everyone gets the chance to give back to the community in some way or another. www.haringayonline.com

The 'New River' is a 'Haringay Gem' that people often find out about, after they have moved into the area. 'The New River' is possibly not the best name, as it is neither new, nor a river as such! It was hand built to bring water to London from the fresh water springs in Ware - Hertfordshire. It flows alongside Wightman Road and cuts across the Haringay Ladder as it heads closer to Finsbury Park.

The Crouch End effect... When it comes to people searching for a new home, many of our potential buyers have begun their search in Crouch End, only to learn very quickly that you can have the same N4/N8 postcode, be far closer to the tube and trains, and still get more property for your money.

You only have to look at a map to see where the 'Haringay Ladder' gets its name. The twenty roads that run east to west, between Green Lanes and Wightman Road look like the rungs of possibly the most popular ladder in the world.

If you would like to know more about the area, or arrange a 'FREE' Property Valuation then you can call Castles on 020 8341 6262.

FOURTH STILL UP FOR GRABS

Scream team: Redknapp tries to make himself heard in Spurs' defeat at Old Trafford

By Lee Husson

HARRY REDKNAPP believes the thrilling race for the final Champions League spot will go down to the wire following Tottenham's 3-1 defeat at the hands of Manchester United on Saturday.

Spurs headed into the week-end occupying the all-important fourth place following two superb home victories over Arsenal and Chelsea, but they were unable to make it three out of three at Old Trafford as two Ryan Giggs penalties and a delightful chip by Nani gave the defending champions all three points.

Redknapp's side remain in fourth, although they are only ahead of Aston Villa on goal difference following their late win over city rivals Birmingham on Sunday, while Manchester City are a point further back after a goalless draw at Arsenal.

Liverpool in seventh are just two points off fourth, and the Spurs manager is expecting a tense finale to the season.

"It's all to play for, it's going to be tight, it's going to go down to the last game I would imagine," he said.

"It's very close and anyone can put a run of games together and can still make it.

"We've got to keep going. We've got Bolton at home next week, which won't be easy, then we've got Man City and then Burnley, so we need to pick up some points from those games and hope we can make it."

Redknapp criticised his side's defending in the wake of Saturday's defeat, having been level at 1-1 going in to the last to come away from here with a point, but we gave two sloppy penalties away from poor defending and the other goal we let Nani run and didn't defend well enough, and it cost us in the end."

Meanwhile Saturday's game saw the return of Aaron Lennon, who has been out since the turn of the year with a troublesome groin injury.

The pacy winger came on for the last 20 minutes at Old Trafford, giving Spurs a timely boost as they attempt to hang on to fourth spot.

Redknapp however insisted he would be cautious in using Lennon after his four-month lay-off.

"Lennon could be a key player," said Redknapp.

"He came on but he never really got into a sprint. That is his first run out so we will have to see how he is this week."

ten minutes thanks to Ledley King's header cancelling out Giggs' first penalty.

"We had an opportunity to come and get something, but we didn't play as well as we had done in the last two games," he added.

"Even then, with ten minutes to go at one-all, you're looking

Boal double sees Haringey bounce back

Haringey Borough 3 Biggleswade United 2

Molten Spartan Premier Division

DAVID BOAL scored twice as Haringey Borough made a return to winning ways by cruising to victory at home to relegation-threatened Biggleswade United in the Spartan Premier Division on Saturday.

Having finally banished any mathematical threat of relegation by drawing 1-1 at Welwyn Garden City last Tuesday, Borough had seen their seven-match unbeaten run come to an end with a 2-1 defeat against newly crowned champions Aylesbury on Thursday.

But they bounced back in fine style against Biggleswade, taking the lead through Mario Georgiou's terrific cross-shot on 21 minutes.

Boal doubled the advantage before half-time as he beat the offside trap to run on to a lobbed ball forward and slide past advancing keeper Damon Hazelwood from close range.

The hosts continued to dominate after the interval and Boal made the game safe on 69 minutes by latching on to a blocked clearance and driving home the third.

Borough were forced to play out the final few minutes with just ten men as James Fuschillo limped off after all three substitutes had been used, and keeper Brian Sealey was finally called into action as he made two excellent saves late on to deny the visitors a consolation goal.

Haringey Borough end their season by hosting Hanwell Town on Saturday (3pm).

Skolars suffer yet another loss

THERE is still no sign of the London Skolars bringing an end to their long wait for a first win of the season after the table-topping Hunslet Hawks became the latest side to inflict a heavy defeat on James Massara's men in rugby league's Co-Operative Championship One.

The Skolars went in to Sunday's match at the New River Stadium having lost all seven of their league games to date, and they never looked like bringing that miserable run to an end as they were beaten 46-8.

Although the game was effectively over as a contest by the time that the league leaders had opened up a 34-8 advantage by half-time, the Skolars can at least take heart from the fact that they prevented Hunslet from scoring any points in the final 24 minutes of the match.

Michael Mark, Danny Grimshaw and John Oakes all scored two tries for the visitors, with Dave Clayton, Paul March and Wayne McHugh also crossing the line in their resounding triumph.

Josh Welsh and Austen Aggrey grabbed consolation tries for the struggling Skolars, who remain one place off the foot of the table.

The London Skolars now have a two-week break before returning to action with a home match against Workington Town at New River Stadium on May 9 (2pm).
